

Based in Ipswich, Inform Direct is a creator of award-winning company secretarial software which helps both business owners and accountancy practices to meet statutory obligations for limited companies.

The software currently supports compliance for more than 350,000 companies throughout the UK and is regularly reviewed and updated to meet emerging requirements.

For business owners

If you are an entrepreneur or director, Inform Direct makes it easy for you to manage statutory company records, including Companies House filings and updates.

This means you no longer need to manually maintain paper records or struggle with complex, outdated software which gives you more time to focus on running your business.

For accountants

Our software's streamlined features, targeted help and clever automation mean you can offer your clients professional company secretarial services.

Unique and time-saving features and shortcuts means you can deliver company secretarial actions much faster than with any other system, helping to reduce errors and increase productivity.

Why compliance matters

There are five key reasons why it is important to fulfil your own or your clients' company secretarial responsibilities.

Firstly, the Companies House Register provides online accessible data available to view by anyone – including every filing – with an estimated three million visits per month.

Secondly, information from the public record is used by banks and other lenders, potential suppliers and customers, shareholders and investors.

Thirdly, not filing certain documents is a criminal offence, for which directors can be personally convicted in the criminal courts and individuals can be disqualified as directors.

Fourthly, failure to submit the annual confirmation statement, accounts or notification of a change of registered office to Companies House can each lead to the start of a compulsory strike-off procedure.

Finally, remedial action when something goes wrong can be both time-consuming and costly.
